GCTools – Value Proposition

The GCTools help the Public Service achieve its objectives by allowing employees to:

Work better

Collaborating digitally involves “working out loud,” where employees can see and benefit from each others’ work.

Learn, share & find knowledge

Employees across the GC share knowledge, learn and develop their competencies through dialogue.

Engage employees & build relationships

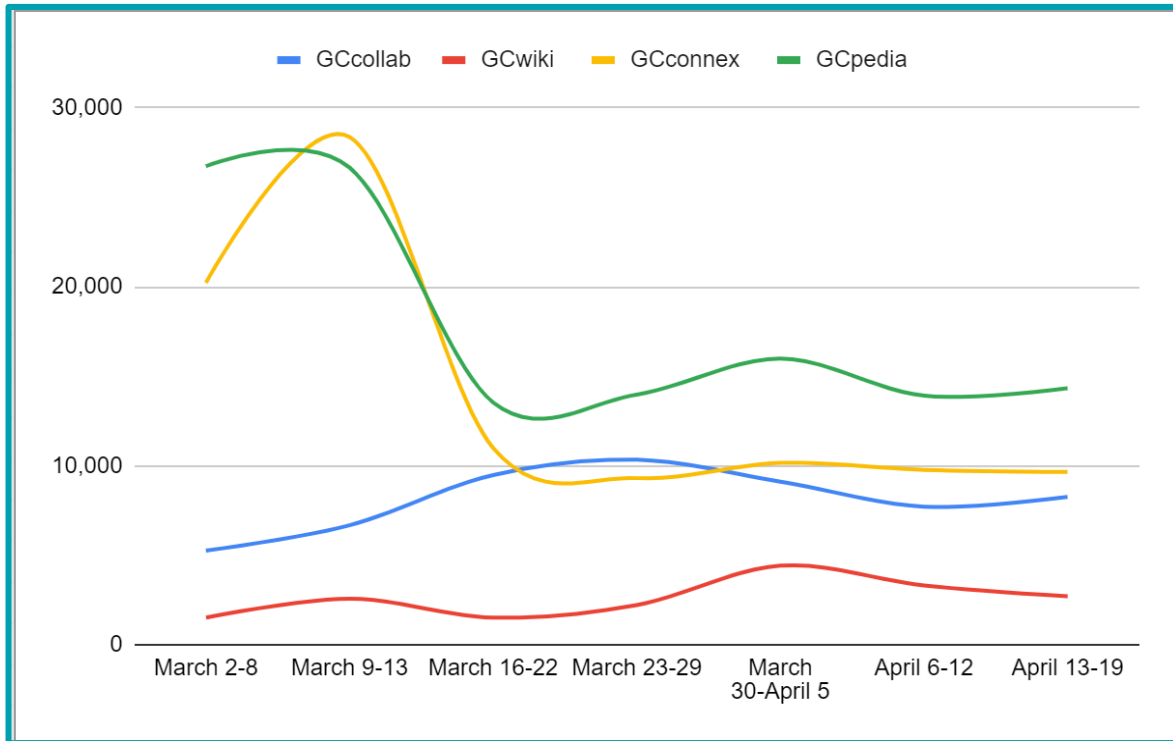

Employees connect, identify colleagues with shared interests and find mentors and opportunities based on their competencies.

GCTools during the COVID-19 pandemic

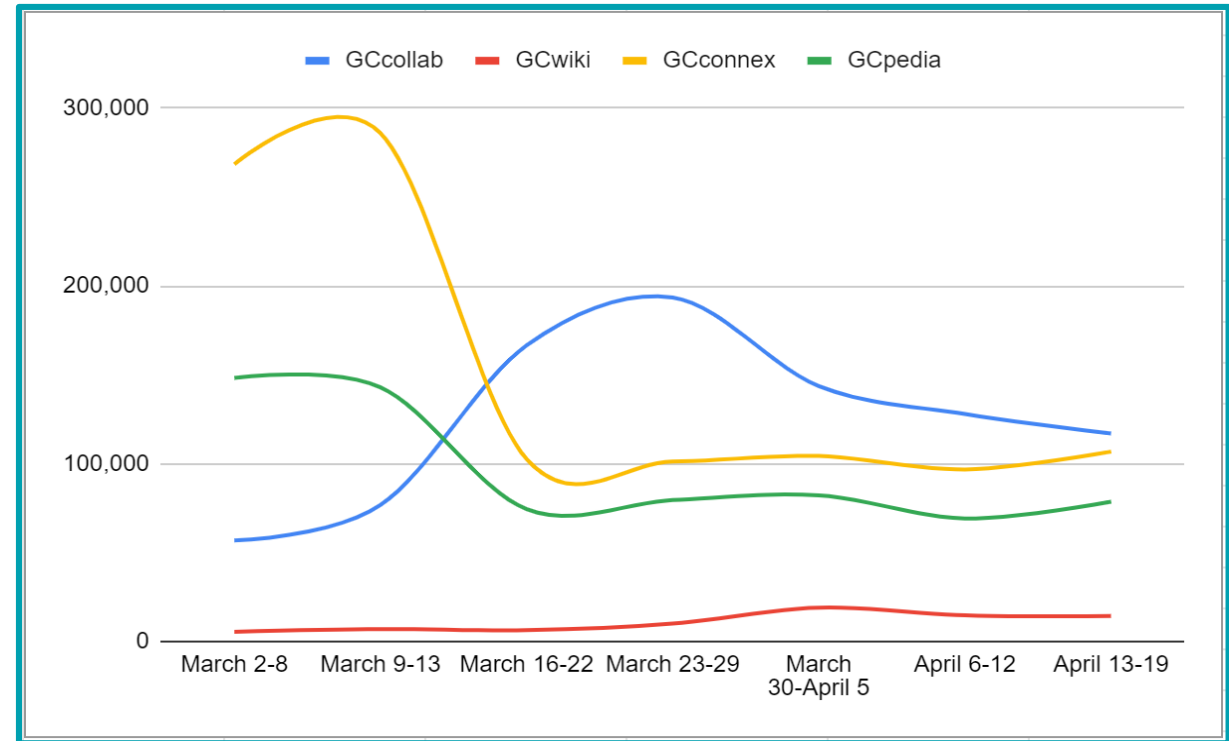

- Most departments are limiting or restricting access to Government of Canada networks to employees performing work deemed critical or essential
- GCcollab, GCmessage and GCwiki are available outside the network on any device with Internet access
- GCTools are the only existing tools that are available, currently functional and open to all public servants

GCpedia

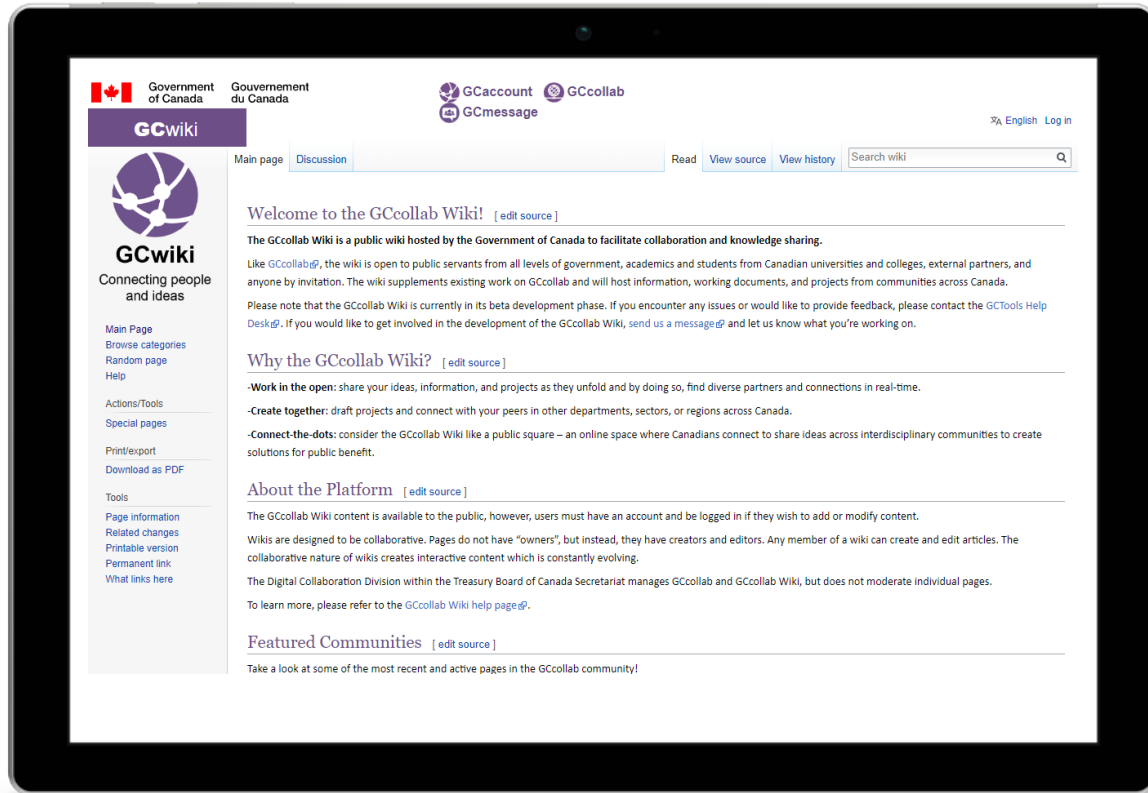

Co-create pages and share information in this collaborative wiki available to all the public service.

- Internal, GC-only
Must be on a Government of Canada device and connected to the internal network.
- Anyone in the Public Service can view any content
- Anyone logged into their account in the Public Service can create a page and edit any content
- Great for publishing pages. Ideal for sharing regular updates and links.
- Use HTML and CSS coding to customize pages.

GCwiki (uses GCaccount)

A public square: an online space to connect and share ideas across interdisciplinary communities to create solutions

- Pages are visible on the internet.

- Pages are only editable by users with a valid GCaccount.

You will be automatically subscribed to updates when a page you create is edited.

- Great for announcements and updates, or for sharing your ideas and projects as they unfold.

A fantastic, process-light way to post public information on the Internet.

- Pages are mostly text.

HTML and CSS coding are restricted.

Welcome to GC Remote Working

This new forum was created by experts at Shared Services Canada in an effort to help GC workers newly impacted by the Covid-19 pandemic who find themselves working remotely.

This is an unprecedented situation, and one which is continually evolving. Remote workers need easy access to the latest information on the available tools and solutions as well as tips, best practices and updates.

Our aim with GC Remote Working is to gather together the relevant remote working information in one place. We are only getting started. Our content is based on available information from all corners of the Government of Canada.

We plan to dive into topics such as security, information and document management, making "smart" use of your smart phone, using alternative tools and an introduction to Microsoft Office 365 and Teams.

Bookmark this page and check back often for more content as the situation evolves.

If you have tips and tricks you would like to share, please contact us at: ssc.gc remoteworking@grw-gctravailadistancegctd.spc@canada.ca.

< GCcollaboration

What is GCcollaboration

In response to COVID-19, the Government of Canada is temporarily launching GCcollaboration, a suite of Microsoft 365 tools that are available:

- on the cloud
- from any personal device
- for unprotected/unclassified information and discussions

Why is GCcollaboration being launched now?

The Government of Canada is launching GCcollaboration to offer public servants a suite of tools to support their remote working arrangements due to the COVID-19 epidemic.

The purpose is to enable the use of video and audio conferencing in MS Teams for public servants and reduce the need of VPN access.
